

Crossroads for Kids Teen Nate W. Awarded Posse Scholarship

February 11, 2010

At an awards ceremony on January 7 at the Omni Parker House Hotel, Crossroads for Kids participant Nate W. joined an elite group of high school seniors who were inducted into the Posse Scholars Class of 2014. Offering full four-year scholarships to top universities as well as support throughout those four years, the Posse Foundation recognized approximately 60 Boston-area high school seniors who will attend five of their partner colleges and universities in the fall.

Nate and nine other Boston-area high school seniors will head to Union College in the fall on full four-year scholarships along with a mentor who will see him and his group through their experience at Union. He was there with his mother and father who could not be more proud of the great accomplishment that Nate has achieved.

First Lady of Massachusetts, Diane Patrick wished the new Posse Scholars well and urged them to rely on their Posse as they began to navigate through college. We are so proud of Nate and thrilled that he will continue to receive strong support not only as he transitions to college, but until he graduates.
